

The American Institute of Architects Central States Region annual awards were held in Saint Louis in September. We were very pleased to receive the Merit Award for Architecture for The Terrace View café at Citygarden. The jury commented: "This project showed a disciplined simplicity and resourcefulness."

JUDGES' COMMENTS:

Such a shame that it's only entered in this category.

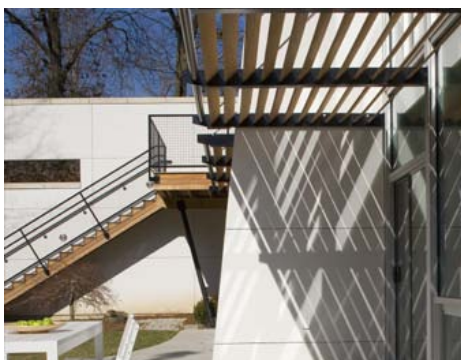

Sharp! The subtle shifts in the ceiling plane are effective in creating spatial variety within a fairly uniform design.

Lovely. Shows how good proportion doesn't need much else. I like the designed 'intention' over decoration. Backdrop for living a modern life.

The designer made wonderful material choices for the raw space. The space feels coherent and has a nice flow. Despite all of the windows, the private areas feel private with the choice of sheer, tailored, ripple-fold curtains. The silhouette of the city beyond and the abundance of light is beautifully managed.

Simple, sleek, handsome, elegant – very nice.
